OVERVIEW

Handmade circular wall clock in solid local wood with carved reliefs and painted field. A hand-shaped ash face alternates natural grain and a deep matte blue surface; simple wooden hands and a discreet maker's mark complete the piece.

DESCRIPTION

Eclisses wall clock is a tactile wall clock that celebrates woodwork as both function and relief. The round panel is carved by hand to create flowing topography in the natural wood, while a contrasting painted field frames the clock's face. The resulting interplay of carved wood grain and flat colour produces a calm, sculptural object that reads equally as timekeeper and wall art.

Crafted from locally sourced wood, each clock is carved, sanded and finished by hand to emphasize grain and texture. The wooden hour and minute hands are intentionally minimal and balanced, allowing the materiality of the face to remain the protagonist. The clock runs on a quiet quartz movement (battery operated) and is finished with a protective, low-sheen coating to preserve the wood without hiding its tactile quality.

Eclisses wall clock fits interiors that value understated craftsmanship and material presence: contemporary homes, workspaces, or curated retail and hospitality settings. It is intended to age gracefully—small variations in grain, carving and finish are part of its character.
